THE POWER OF COLOUR

Colours play an exceptionally prominent role in our lives. They can influence our thinking, inspire our decision-making, and impact our moods. From causing changes to changing reactions - colours are more powerful than we think.

Choosing appropriate colours for your home, the different rooms and the rooms accessories like radiators etc. are an important aspect of interior design and it always good to know a thing or two about colour.

When choosing wall, flooring, or radiator colours, it's important to keep the goal of the space in mind. Colour is often divided into two categories: warm and cool tones. Warm colours are the red, orange, and yellow sides of the colour spectrum and they're associated with warmth and comfort. They're generally associated with passion, playfulness, and joy, which makes them a good option for bedrooms and other intimate spaces.

By contrast, cool colours are the blue, purple, and green sides of the colour spectrum. They're more calming and soothing than warm colours and blue is often used for confidence whereas purple is used to evoke creativity. This makes them good colours to use in kitchens, dining rooms, and studies.

THE DIFFERENT COLOURS

The psychology behind colour can be fascinating and we learn more about colours and our reaction to them every day. We have tried to gather the most common understandings of what the different colours mean, what they symbolize and how we, as humans, are affected by them.

All colours awake different emotions and can affect our behavior and it is therefore not without meaning if we decide to use a coloured radiator as a focal point in our living room or if we on the other hand decide to keep the radiator neutral and let it blend in with the wall colour.

YOUR POSSIBILITIES

All our products are delivered as a standard in white RAL 9016 and always in gloss 70.

RAL CLASSIC SYSTEM

For a splash of colour we offer to paint all our products from the Classic RAL colour catalogue, in either gloss 30 or 70. The Classic RAL System is the most popular Central European Colour Standard used today and we can supply our radiators in 213 RAL colours including our standard white, RAL 9016, Traffic White.

On the next pages you can find all our available RAL colours. When selecting a colour, we always recommend that you look online for colour matches or visit a local colour-shop.

NATURAL COLOUR SYSTEM

As a supplement to the RAL classic colour scheme, we also offer to paint our products per the NCS or Natural Colour System. The NCS systems is a Scandinavian developed system and bases itself on the way the human eye sees colours. As there are several hundred different NCS colours we have chosen not to show them here but advise you to look online for a colour match or to visit your local colour-shop for a colour match. The NCS colours are also offered as gloss 70 or 30.

For any questions, please speak to your local consultant or call Hudevad customer service for assistance.

THE NEUTRAL COLOURS - GREY, BROWN, BLACK AND WHITE

Neutral colours are shades that appear to lack colour but often have underlying hues that change with different lighting. Examples of neutral colours include beige, taupe, gray, cream, brown, black, and white.

The neutral colour palette includes black, white, brown, and gray, all of which fall under the category of pure colour, which means they are fully saturated and do not have an underlying colour.

Greys

Grey is the colour of compromise and control. Gray is seen as neutral, conservative, and unemotional. It is practically solid as a rock, making it incredibly stable, reliable, and calming. It has a peaceful, relaxing, and soothing presence.

Grey reduces energy from other colours and can give a room with different shades of grey an elegant and futuristic design feel. Use grey on a radiator to make it blend with the other shades of the room or paint it a dark grey to make it pop. Grey is beautiful with all natural woods.

Browns

Brown is the colour of stability and reliability. Brown is dependable and comforting and makes a room feel cozy and warm.

The brown shades will make you feel grounded and will give a sense of order in the room and hopefully in your life as well. There are endless possibilities with the use of brown as you can mix the hues and create a dramatic effect or mix brown with wood and natural elements to create a subtle understated elegance.

A brown radiator may for many seem really dull but use a rich brown to highlight stronger colours like lime green or orange and would really make the radiator contrast the rooms interior. Use a brown radiator and wall to tone down a room by giving the radiator a lighter or dark shade of brown than the wall. Would be perfect in a living room or dining room.

Black and white

Interior decoration with black and white has been a hit for many years and it's easy to understand why as black oozes power, sophistication and authority and makes us feel secure and protected. Black is often paired with white, that is the true balance of all colours and is associated with cleanliness, simplicity, and perfection. In combination they are considered one of the most iconic colour combinations in interior design history for its timelessness and versatility.

Our standard radiator is painted white and makes it suitable for use with practically any other colour. Black radiators have in the past decade been more and more in demand and it's easy to see why. Make your radiator a statement and make it demand attention in the room.
